About this Directory

This short directory tells you about Disabled People’s Organisations (DPOs) in Scotland, what we do and how to contact us. It has been produced to help put organisations and individuals in touch with Disabled People’s Organisations.

Working closely with disabled people and Disabled People’s Organisations will help you to understand the rights we have, the reality we face and what needs to change so that we have equal enjoyment to our rights to independent living, participation and citizenship. We want to work with you to make these changes. When you do this, you are more likely to get results that work well for disabled people and that means for your organisation and for Scotland as a whole.

This directory includes the national and strategic DPOs in Scotland. There are other DPOs including local ones, however it is a helpful starting point and the organisations listed here will be able to signpost you.

What are Disabled People's Organisations (DPOs)?

DPOs are organisations run by and for disabled people. This means that at least 51% of people on our boards are disabled people. For more information, please see “It’s our world too” (ILiS 2010). DPOs are part of the UK disability rights movement and our values are rooted in the social model of disability which basically says that it is the barriers put in place by society which disabled us, not a medical impairment. We challenge these barriers which include physical, legal, financial, communication and attitudes though there are many more and they take many forms. Most DPOs are for all disabled people regardless of impairment and they aim to remove all the barriers.

DPOs aim to influence decision makers, public bodies, private sector, employers and society and have allies across many sectors particularly the ‘Third Sector’. We bring the direct lived experience of disabled people to the table. Some DPOs work locally and others work nationally. Some DPOs are made up of people who share a specific impairment.

For more information, please see “It’s our world too” (ILiS 2010). If you are unsure which organisation to contact, Independent Living in Scotland contact@ilis.co.uk
The Scottish Independent Living Coalition (SILC) is a coalition of the key strategic Disabled People’s Organisations in Scotland. All the organisations in this Directory are members of SILC. We work together to influence decision makers and service providers and to highlight what needs to change, why and how to do it working with us disabled people to deliver our equal rights.

We can support decision makers to develop policies and programmes by meeting with you to share our lived experience and solutions for change, and our priorities and principles for enacting such change. We work alongside our stakeholders from across civil society such as professional bodies, academics and elected members. SILC is part of the Scottish Government’s Programme Board for its Delivery Plan for A Fairer Scotland for Disabled People, which details the Government’s approach to progressing the UN Convention on the Rights of Disabled People, in Scotland.

The Secretariat and initial contact point for SILC is ILiS contact@ilis.co.uk. Please get in touch if you would like to meet with us.

The information in this directory was taken directly from the websites of the organisations listed with their approval.
The directory – national organisations

These national organisations cover the whole of Scotland. This means they engage mostly with national organisations e.g. the Scottish Government, COSLA, NHS Scotland, other national third sector organisations and so on, but they also have local links through their membership organisations.

Who we are: Inclusion Scotland

What we do:
Inclusion Scotland works to achieve positive changes to policy and practice, so that we disabled people are fully included throughout all Scottish society as equal citizens.

We do this by:

- Influencing decision-makers, ensuring that disabled people are involved in developing effective solutions for policy and practice that reflect our expertise by experience and meet our needs and aspirations.

- Supporting disabled people to be decision-makers themselves, promoting the equal representation of disabled people as policy-makers and our right to make decisions about our own lives.

- Developing capacity, awareness and engagement, of disabled people, disabled people’s organisations, and the organisations and institutions that affect our lives.

Who we are: Disability Equality Scotland

What we do:
Disability Equality Scotland (DES) is a national organisation working to achieve full access and inclusion for every disabled person in Scotland. DES is the umbrella organisation for all disability Access Panels in Scotland, providing them with support and guidance to improve the lives of disabled people at a local level throughout Scotland.

We do this by:

- Providing a strategic and operational understanding of access and inclusion in Scotland including establishing an evidence base that informs policy and best practice.
- Promoting the value of and represent the opinions of disabled people to increase recognition and support for involvement of disabled people in decision making.
- Educating the public about the importance of access and inclusion in our society.
- Encouraging diversity and enhance access to inclusion by addressing barriers and targeting those not currently involved.
- Working with organisations, communities and Access Panels to enable community engagement to have a positive impact on addressing areas and issues of need and disadvantage.
